DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 8 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 8 and 9 are deemed improper dependent claims because they do further limit the optical device as set forth in independent claim 1. Further there is no structure provided for the optical scanning device, as set forth in claim 8, or the photo camera, as set forth in claim 9. It seems that they would be in better form for examination if presented in independent form.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Tukker et al. (WO 03/052755).

Tukker et al. discloses the invention as claimed. The reference shows the optical device comprising a wavefront modifier for introducing a wavefront modification in a radiation beam, said wavefront modifier comprising a first optical element (301) and a second optical element (302) arranged in such a way that a suitable alternative movement of the first optical element leads to a translation of the second optical element by means of a stick-slip effect (see for example Figs. 4-9), as set forth in claims 1-9.

The reference further teaches: the different movement of the first and second optical elements (see for example Figs. 2-7), as set forth in claims 2-4; the moving element of the first and second optical elements (not specifically shown to be a piezoelectric element, but believe to any form of moving or actuating means which would include magnetic type or piezoelectric type, which is very well known in the art and to the very least would have been a very obvious modification), as set forth in claim 5; and the guiding elements for the optical elements (see Figs. 8), as set forth in claim 6. See also the description of the apparatus and figures for further details relating to the limitations as set forth in the claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Maeda et al. (US 6,751,175) discloses an optical disk apparatus having the ability of correcting wavefront aberration by sliding first and second optical elements.
